Martinelli. That melodious, beautiful name will henceforth be linked in Atlanta with memories of a glorious night. It will be associated with a personification of all that is sweet and gracious, cultural and passionately artistic. For Giovanni Martinelli conquered Friday night.
He engraved his name not only in the heart and soul of a great audience at the Auditorium, but he also wrote his name with indelible golden characters on the walls of the Pantheon of grand opera.

Martinelli's art is inherent. It is part of his physical and spiritual make-up. He is a full-blooded artist.
Like a noble race horse steps and canters because its ancestors had the quality, so Martinelli has a personality that reveals itself only because of generations and generations of artistic and cultural temperament.
With sweeping dramatic passion,
with overwhelming emotionalism, but above all else with a voice that is pure gold and of magnificent fibre, he brought Atlanta to his feet in waves,
in tempestuous storms of enthusiastic applause.

Martinelli Super Artist.
Martinelli is the super-artist. His voice and his acting in Friday night's performance of "Fedora" were like the mellow balmy trade winds that drive
the ships to port in tranquility and without mishap. Martinelli is a young man. He has not yet reached the zenith of his power, but he is heading for the supremacy of the operatic stage with all the fervor of his marvelous magic personality.
"Fedora" is pre-eminently the triumph of the modern Italian school.
Gennaro Papi, the able conductor, proved Friday night that he fully measures up to the demands of the modern school, which strives to unify

Hammer Wielder
Abandons Victim
To 5-Day WelterErnest Klepstein, Beaten to Insensibility, Lingers
Unfound in Flat.

Vallejo, Cal., April 25.—A new hammer murder, one of the most atrocious the state ever has known, has been disclosed in the investigation of the death of Ernest Klepstein, Mare Island draftsman. Klepstein was not killed outright, but was left lying in his apartment for five days before he was discovered late Thursday night. He died Friday.
Klepstein died without regaining consciousness and the police have no clue except a bloodstained hammer.
Friends, disturbed by Klepstein's absence from work, visited his apartment in Vallejo Thursday night, and finding the door locked, forced it open.
Klepstein lay on the floor, a hammer with which his skull had been crushed in a dozen places lying close by.
Unfinished work on a drafting board and the position of his body indicated that his assailant had struck from behind while he was seated at an improvised desk.
He was taken to a hospital and surgeons labored for several hours in an endeavor to straighten out the crushed skull, but his weakened condition from the suffering for five days made it impossible for him to survive through the operations.
Neighbors told police that they had heard a disturbance in Klepstein's apartment last Saturday night.

Five Good Reasons for Opera's Success in Atlanta

Edward Johnson, one of Metropolitan's most finished artists, is shown in the upper left-hand corner of this picture, and proceeding
to the right from him we see Feodor Chaliapin, who will sing this afternoon in "Faust." Beniamino Gigli

low, Madame Frances Alda and Giovanni Martinelli are other of the stars who have helped to make the past week hold one of Atlanta's
most successful opera seasons.

PRESIDENT SEEKS SMOOTH ROAD OUT
ON JAP EXCLUSIONCoolidge Desires to Meet
Expressed Will of Congress and Save Japanese Pride at Same Time.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, April 25.—An arrangement with respect to Japanese immigration which will satisfy the advocates of exclusion and which at the same time will avoid any affront to Japan is being attempted by President Coolidge.

The president is hopeful that the arrangement can be effected and with that end in view will continue his conference on immigration legislation with congressional leaders and Secretary Hughes. Just what sort of arrangement the executive has in mind was not disclosed at the white house where the announcement was made today that a compromise move was in progress. None of those who have conferred recently with the president would discuss the matter.

Veto Not Predicted.
White house officials would not go
so far as to say that the president would veto the immigration bill, now in conference between the senate and house, should the proposed arrangement fail of acceptance, but visitors to the white house have found the executive greatly disturbed over the situation resulting from adoption by congress of the provision for Japanese exclusion.

Chairman Colt, of the senate immigration committee, who was one of the six senators who voted against the immigration bill, conferred with the president today and laid before the executive his reasons for viewing
the exclusion provision as unnecessary, illogical and generally harmful to American interests.

Conference Rushes Work.
Senator Colt later attended the first meeting of the senate and house conferences on the measure but it was not disclosed whether he carried to the conferees any suggestion from the president. Some supporters of the bill as it passed the house believe that by adoption of the non-quota provisions of the house measure a

By Imbibing Poison Potion

Detroit, April 25.—Wanda Elaine Stopa, sought for the shooting of an aged gardener who halted her efforts to kill Y. Kenley Smith, an advertising man, and his wife, killed herself with a poison lotion at a prominent hotel here Friday.

After her flight from Palos Park,
the Chicago suburb where she killed
Howard Manning at Smith's summer cottage, she came to Detroit and registered as "Mrs. Ted Glasgow," which was the assumed name of her Russian husband, Vladimir Glaskoff.

Her capture was imminent at the time of her death. Eugene Chloupek, of Indianapolis, had seen her writing
a letter earlier in the day in the hotel writing room, and recognized her from newspaper photographs.

GOODYEAR WINNER
OF BALLOON RACE

Lacks 73 Miles of Breaking American Record.
Was in Air 43 Hours, 24
Minutes.

San Antonio, Texas, April 25.—
The last of the seven balloons that took the air at Kelly Field here late Wednesday in the national balloon elimination race came to earth today
far up in southeastern Minnesota.
W. T. Van Orman, piloting the "Goodyear III," entry of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, with his aide, C. K. Wollam, brought the race to a close when they landed early this afternoon near Rochester, Minn., approximately 1,100 miles from the starting point, the farthest distance
traversed by any of the contestants.
The winner fell approximately 73
miles short of the American distance record of 1,172.9 miles, established in 1910 by W. R. Hawley in the race from St. Louis.

Van Orman and Wollam were in the air 43 hours and 24 minutes.
Captain H. E. Honeywell, veteran of many races, piloting a balloon under the banner of the Kansas City
co-operative club, with Captain T. E.
Boushert, of Kelly Field, as his aide,
came second, landing only about 50

He notified the management, and a watch was placed in the writing room, whence she vanished during Chloupek's trip to the desk, and in the corridor outside her room. When hours passed and she failed to appear, her room was entered and her body found.

The young woman, who won much comment when she was admitted to the bar at 21, and who mingled later with artists in Chicago, has many friends in Detroit, where she lived with Glaskoff for a time.

Chloupek had verified his suspicion that she was the Chicago fugitive by glancing over her shoulders.
The envelope she was addressing, contained the name of a Chicago address.

Well-Known Georgia Political Figure and Criminal Lawyer Succumbs to Apoplectic Attack.

Macon, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)
John Randolph Cooper, 59, probably the best-known criminal lawyers in Georgia, whose practice extended
throughout the south Atlantic states,
and who was a familiar figure in the supreme court of the United States, where he had carried numerous capital cases, died suddenly this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of one of his clients, Richard Hunnicutt, in Crawford county.

Mr. Cooper's sudden death came as a shock to friends in Macon and throughout the state, because to most of them it was entirely unexpected.
For several months he had not been in the best of health. Last Sunday afternoon he drove to Crawford county, where he had a number of clients. The car broke down and he was forced to remain there until Monday morning, when he returned to Macon.

Dropped Dead.
Wednesday afternoon he returned to Crawford county to bring the car

ANNEXATION PLAN
AND TAX INCREASE
KILLED FOR YEARCharter Revision Committee Unanimous in Opposition To Taking in Buckhead and Druid Hills

Proposals to annex Buckhead and Druid Hills sections to increase taxes were definitely killed for this year by the charter revision committee of the city council Friday afternoon. The vote was unanimous.
Permanent registration of voters,
proposed by Councilman T. L. S.
Slapper; establishment of pay ward
at Grady hospital, proposed by the hospital committee, and amendment of license laws to permit charging a city tax of 5 per cent on all boxing match receipts, proposed by Alderman Claude E. Buchanan, received unanimous approval of the committee.

Other proposals defeated by the committee are Alderman J. R. Bachman's measure to empower mayor and general council to abolish or consolidate any city departments they choose; Councilman J. J. Greer's measure to repeal the amendment adopted last year to permit fees to be charged for building permits; Councilman Cassell's proposal, held over from last year, to elect tax assessors for three-year terms, one to go out of office each year, instead of electing
all of them every two years.

Annexation Measure.
The annexation measures which met the committee's disapproval had been introduced by Alderman J. L.
McLendon and Councilman Horace Russell. More than 100 Atlanta taxpayers had appeared to protest against the proposal at a public hearing of the committee several weeks ago, contending that the cost of extending city service to the territory would be too heavy a burden on the rest of the taxable property of the city.

The tax increase measure which was defeated had been introduced by Alderman L. N. Ragsdale, mayor pro-tem. He proposed an increase of the rate from $1.50 to $2 on each $100
of property on the ground that assessments are now too high and

GIFT OF $200,000
OFFERED TO BUILD
GRADY PAY ANNEX

City Hospital at Present
Is Barred by Law From Charging Fees for Treatment There.

FREE WARD ADDITION
VOTED BY COMMITTEE

Hot Fight Expected,
However, When Report
on Proposed Charter Change Reaches Council.

Informed that a local philanthropist is ready to give $200,000 to build an annex to Grady hospital for use as a pay ward in event the city charter is amended to permit charging fees at the hospital, the charter revision committee of city council
Friday afternoon recommended the change.

Since its establishment Grady has been by law strictly a charity institution, although several efforts have been made to change the charter to permit charging fees. These have been defeated on the ground that other hospitals provide ample accommodation for persons able to pay for attention and that Grady should be devoted exclusively to the service of those who cannot pay for it.

Johnston's Plan.
Steve Johnston, superintendent of Grady, told the committee that this objection would be overcome through erection of a separate ward for pay patients, leaving the entire present facilities of the institution open for charity work.

The resolution adopted by the charter revision committee was presented by the hospitals and charities committee of council. It simply empowers the city to make charges for service at Grady. Members of the committee explained that the policy of the city would be to fix charges on a basis of ability to pay. Many people who now are objects of charity because they cannot afford to pay the entire cost of service in other hospitals would be willing and able to pay a cheaper rate at Grady, it was explained. All these patients would be treated in the pay ward.
Stiff opposition to the change is

Atlanta To Pay
Annual Tribute
To Gray HeroesGreat Parade and Exercises
at Oakland Will Feature Program.

Throughout the southland today
hearts of true southerners, faithful in devotion to the heroic past, in memory of immortal dead and in honor of the living heroes, will beat
as one great heart of love.

This one day in each year is set apart for a show of love and tribute to heroes whose deeds adorn the most glorious pages of history, a day when Dixie's sons and daughters will pay homage and reverent tribute to those who wore the gray in the 60's.

On every hillside in Dixieland a faithful people's undying love for heroic sires will be poured out to the fullest measure. In every hamlet, village and city in all the southland
the spirit of devotion to a principle, of admiration of heroism, will be exemplified in appropriate song and ceremonies—a loving tribute of the loving of their immortal dead.

Survivors to Gather.
Groups of survivors, remnants of the tattered army that held off a relentless foe for four years, who stood guard and bitterly fought for each foot of southern soil yielded, will journey today to graves of their departed comrades. These groups, flanked by thousands of representatives of churches, civic institutions,
regular army, national guard and patriotic societies will march through cities in the southland to lifting grave to grave of the Confederate dead
there to hold brief memorial services,
to enliven brave hearts, to relate brave deeds, and leave fresh flowers
on every mound.

This day, hallowed with its memories, will be a day of great significance to the people of the southland.

TWO MEN JAILED
AND 100 QUARTS
OF BOOZE TAKEN

Nearly 100 quarts of whisky were confiscated Friday morning and two arrests made when Federal Prohibition Agents Sowell and Adair captured a liquor car speeding south on Ivy street. The men arrested were R. L. Mauldin and H. C. Vann, both of Detroit. The car had been driven to Atlanta from the Canadian border, according to the occupants. Both made cash bond of $200.

CHARLES MURPHY,
TAMMANY LEADER,
DIES SUDDENLY

Stricken With Acute Indigestion at Home Just After He Had Finished
Breakfast.

New York, April 25.—Charles F.
Murphy, grand chieftain of Tammany Hall, and for many years a powerful factor in democratic councils of the state and nation, died today of heart failure induced by acute indigestion.

A product of the East Side's picturesque "gas house district," he had,
first with fists and then with brains,
fought his way from the stokehold of ward politics to the quarterdeck of party fame and financial fortune.

In a span of 66 years he had been poor man's son, ward leader, bartender, saloon keeper, officeholder,
financier, and finally local director
and national adviser to his party.

He had graduated from the sobriquet of "Fists Murphy" through that of "Hurly-Burly," "Sport," "Silent Charles" and, at the last, "C. F. M.," the initials by which all knew him, although few of those who obeyed his commands ever had seen him. And always, from merest youth, his name and that of Tammany were linked together.

Insists on Breakfast.
He retired last night, after a busy day and a hearty dinner, to be awakened this morning by feverish chills and the pangs of indigestion.
Characteristically, he insisted upon breakfasting at the usual early hour.
Immediately he became alarmingly ill
and died a few minutes later in the presence of his physician, a priest,
his daughter Mable, and her husband,
Surrogate James A. Foley.

The taciturn genius, who had ruled the destinies of Tammany Hall for 22 years, as successor to the late Richard Croker, remained conscious to the end, unaware that death was near. He submitted to the hypodermic injection when his physician recognized that collapse was imminent,
and his only comment was of surprise that indigestion should have awakened him, and that his heart caused him pain.

Mrs. Murphy, who was in Atlanta City, was summoned home. Although her husband died before she could entrain, she was not aware of it.

Gun Fight Waged
For Possession
Of Stolen AutoThree Bandits Make Escape,
Unhurt, After Machine
Is Disabled.

Pursuit of an automobile manned
by three alleged negro bandits by a police car containing three city detectives, punctuated by the exchange of at least 50 shots, furnished spectacular entertainment to the throngs of pedestrians, merchants and residents in the South Atlanta district a thrill Friday afternoon, which was climaxed by the breaking of a front wheel of the pursued machine and the escape of the negro occupants while bullets rained around them.

The machine which the negroes occupied had been stolen from C. G.
Miner, of 414 East Howard street,
College Park, last night.
Officers in the gun battle and chase
were Lieutenant T. C. Sturdivant, E.
D. Meek and J. Hiram Davis, of the plainclothes department. They pursued the stolen car more than a mile before they captured it after it was abandoned.

As the officers returned to police barracks from their chase, they captured an automobile containing 30 gallons of sweet mash corn liquor and arrested the two occupants, who gave their names as H. L. Nichols, Woodward avenue, and Fred Sullivan, of South Atlanta.

COMPROMISE PLAN

Republican Regulars Admit Defeat at Hands of gent Coalition.

SENATORS PREDICT
SHORT, SHARP FIGHT

Senator Watson Says Bill
Will Be Completed and Ready for Final Vote by Thursday.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, April 25.—Regular Republicans in the senate have resigned themselves to the death knell
of the major part of the Mellon tax rates, and are casting about to see what they can save out of the destruction which is being prepared by democrats and insurgents.

Though Senator Smoot, of Utah, pushed the Mellon plan out of the finance committee by a close shave—
after the house had killed it—and has inaugurated a valiant defense on the floor, republican leaders know
the effort will be futile, and are admitting it.

No Compromise In Sight.
Democrats are so well organized behind their plan—and so well supported by a number of progressives—that republicans admittedly are in a quandary as to their course, especially since the decision to give the Mellon plan a last try. It has been expected that a compromise movement, such as brought partial victory for republicans in the house, would be started, but none of any strength has yet appeared.

No concrete sentiment has crystallized among regular republicans in the senate as to their course up to this time, one leader admitted Friday.

To Adopt House Rates.
After sounding out opinion, he said that he had come to the conclusion that the plan finally approved by the senate would be very similar to that provided in the house bill, as far as the rate structure is concerned.

When the rate schedules come up for discussion, the fight will rage around the surtax. This leader predicted that it would result in the same rate in the house bill, 37 1-2 per cent maximum, beginning at $200,000. Democrats in the senate are asking a maximum of 40 per cent,
to apply at $500,000 and over.

Brookhart Claims Loss.
Others, however, seemed to think that the prediction of the 37 1-2 per cent rate was a bit optimistic. Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, said he has 14 senators lined up with him who will vote for the highest surtax rate offered, one of the insurgent group will ask 50 per cent. This is expected to fail. The insurgents, and the millions of progressives who will stand with them, will then vote for the democratic rate, Brookhart said.

A fight equaling that over the rates
schedules is predicted for the estate,

Labor Premier, Miner's Son, ISHBEL ALSO INVITED—KELLOGGS TO BE IN PARTY Is Week-End Guest of King

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, April 25.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, born in a miner's cottage, will arrive at Windsor castle Saturday as a personal week-end guest of the king and queen of England. Pretty Ishbel MacDonald will also be a guest with her father.

Probably they will arrive, a guests usually do at Windsor castle, some time in the morning. King George and Queen Mary will greet them in the outer hall when the prime minister and his daughter have driven up to the imposing castle.

The guests will be assigned rooms in the king's own wing of the castle as intimate friends, instead of being given the more formal rooms where state guests stay.

Ambassador Kellogg, American representative in London, will also be a guest at the king's week-end, together with Mrs. Kellogg and others of the party will inspect what is possibly the most splendid castle in the world.

They will visit the library of 120,000 volumes and see priceless tapestries and paintings there. They will see the gold dinner service, which is worth $10,000,000, and the dinner service of Sevres china, which is worth $5,000,000. It is even possible that they may listen in on the king's radio set at the castle. After church

Sunday, King George may show them the castle gardens, of which he is particularly proud.

Ishbel has met Queen Mary several times since MacDonald became premier, and it is reported that the girl is a great favorite with the queen, who likes the old-fashioned type of maiden.

taining her last words before suicide, bore the name of her mother, "Mrs. (nee Stopa, 1505 Augusta street."

DIARY REVEALS PIGMYROSE PATH

Chicago, April 25.—In the cool curves and dashes of a shorthand system, Wanda Stopa's diary tells of the platonic friendship that warmed to something more, between the young girl who was artist as well as lawyer, and the suave writer of advertisements, Y. Kenley Smith, until he man she loved.

There was no entry, however, of the dimming episode, the shooting of Howard Manning, aged gardener, who intercepted the bullets first intended for Smith's wife.

An ironic aside on Manning's heroism came in a telegram from the New England family he deserted 18 years ago, informing police that his relatives wanted nothing to do with his burial.

Wanda Stopa, originally a calm, wandering far in Bohemia, where emotion rules the mind, when she began to find in her diary, each midnight, a vent for the pent-up turbulence of each day. It filled rapidly with thoughts, words and deeds of "Kenley."

"Oh Toots, I love you, love you, love you," the notebook quotes the man whose studio she shared, on his nights in town, with his wife's knowledge. "Toots" was Smith's pet name for Wanda. The words rang incongruously from the lips of a shorthand expert, who deciphered them, with Smith a fugitive from "Toots" revolver, and Toots hiding from the police, who sought Toots for murder.

Too Much Interruption.

The police found her diary in a studio she had rented from Smith, where he spent nights when he was caught in town too late to go to his Palace Park cottage.

"I know how you hate to have me write things on paper," she wrote, evidently composing a rough draft of a letter. "But I do not seem to be able to discuss things with you without becoming excessively emotional, violent, besides, my dear, I am a few things I would like to say to you uninterrupted by you."

"I feel that my attachment for you is becoming a sort of millstone around your neck, that you never intended it to reach the hectic stage it has. . . . An artist needs a manager. You are an artist, I am the manager."

"I will hold myself in readiness to come to you whenever you may wish me outside of working hours," she wrote under the subtitle "compensation."

corporation, and gift taxes, on which there is disagreement among republicans, democrats and insurgents. Consideration of these, and of the rate schedule, was postponed by general agreement when the senate began work on the bill Friday.

Senators Are Lax.

The senate got away to a flying start on the bill Friday, and predictions were being made freely that it would be disposed of in much less time than had at first been expected.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, a member of the finance committee, said the bill would be completed by next Thursday. Senator Jones, democrat of New Mexico, also a member of the committee, said that he would not require many days in his judgment, and urged that senators were not paying enough attention to the legislation.

Only a handful of senators were present during consideration of the measure Friday and roll calls were asked to get them to the floor. It was urged that senators were not paying enough attention to the legislation.

miles behind the leader. Honeywell came down at Sanborn, Minn., at 8:29 o'clock this morning, an estimated distance of 1,050 miles.

Major Norman W. Peck, pilot, and Lieutenant William A. Gray, aide, with their army balloon 8-14, won third place, nosing out the Detroit aviation society contestant by approximately 20 miles.

Major Orman, Captain Honeywell and Major Peck, by taking the first three places in the race, became America's representatives in the Gordon Bennett international contest to be held at Brussels in June.

Herbert Von Thaden and Svend A. U. Rasmussen, pilot and aide, respectively, of the Detroit gas bag, landed five miles southwest of Dubuque, Iowa, at 2 a. m. today, negotiating approximately 1,000 miles. The other three entries were out of the race Thursday evening.

The winner captures a prize of $1,000; second place $800, and third, $500, the money being awarded to defray expenses of the trip to Europe.

way might be found to satisfy those advocating exclusion and yet make the legislation less objectionable to Japan.

The conferees at today's meeting discussed the bill in a general way and proposed to take up the various differences tomorrow. Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, announced after the meeting that the conferees plan to complete their work tomorrow so that the house may act finally on the bill Monday and the senate within a few days thereafter.

Would Open Door Too Wide.

Chairman Johnson in a statement issued tonight declared that to place the Japanese under the quota basis applied to other nationalities "would mean formal abandonment of this nation's established policy to exclude aliens ineligible to citizenship and open the doors for a demand for naturalization on their part."

"It would give the Japanese," he said, "a privilege denied to all other yellow and brown races, an act of discrimination which the others, including Chinese and Hindus, could justly complain; and if wives were admitted outside the quota, now or in the future, it would open the gates to a flood of picture brides for the 40,000 unmarried adult Japanese in continental United States."

TWO UNDER ARREST AS TAMPA BANDITS

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 25.—Joe Jackson and Aaron Philman, suspected of being the two men who robbed A. C. Clewis of $24,000 in currency in a daring daylight hold-up at Tampa Wednesday, were arrested here this morning by Hillsborough county deputy sheriffs working in conjunction with Charles Sims, local constable.

The men denied any connection with the robbery and claim that they will be able to prove an alibi. Before they had been told on what charge they were arrested, they announced that they were from this city all day Wednesday. The Hillsborough officers said that the men answer the description given by Clewis of the men who held him up. No money was found on the men. Jackson formerly lived in Tampa and only recently moved here. Philman has lived here for several years. The men were taken to Tampa.

PHILMAN IDENTIFIED
BY FOUR AT JAIL.

Tampa, Fla., April 25.—Aaron Philman, arrested in St. Petersburg today, was identified by four persons at the county jail here this afternoon as one of the bandits who held up A. C. Clewis, prominent banker, in West Tampa, Wednesday and robbed him of $24,000.

The identification was made by L. Torres, manager of a cigar factory, and three boys who witnessed the robbery. Mr. Clewis would not say positively whether either of the men was concerned in the robbery.

The other witnesses declared Jackson was not one of the robbers.

ATLANTA TO PAY TRIBUTE TO HEROES

ries of sacrifice, devotion and bravery, grows more sacred each year as the thin, broken line of remnants rapidly grows shorter.

Men and women turn from business and household cares today to kneel at the shrine of the immortal dead, glorify the loyalty of sires whose bravery has no equal in all history.

Honor to Stars and Bars.

In Atlanta, where one generation ago a heap of ruins and smoldering remains of a thriving city made up the desolate remains left in the wake of an army, thousands will wear small stars and bars in memory of the flag which, in falling, yet touched the highest wave of gallantry.

Others will join in the big parade at 2 o'clock, which ends at Oakland cemetery where memorial services will be held. Still others will stand at rigid attention and in reverent spirit as marchers pass down the streets on its annual sacred pilgrimage. And all true southerners will join in spirit in observance of Memorial Day plans.

Mayor Walter Sims, as is the annual custom, Friday issued a Memorial Day proclamation, declaring Saturday a holiday and calling upon all citizens to observe the day. The state capital will be closed and practically all other city and state business will be at a standstill.

At 1 o'clock groups of civil war veterans, a detachment of regular army soldiers from Fort McPherson, several companies of the Georgia national guard, representatives of the American Legion, Spanish-American war veterans, veterans of the world war, veterans of foreign wars; patriotic societies and many others will begin assembling for the big parade at the confluence of the two Peachtree streets.

Procession Moves.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the procession will begin moving down Peachtree street, into Whitehall and on to Oakland cemetery. Commemorative will begin at the cemetery upon arrival of marchers. Albert H. Cox will deliver the principal address and Rev. A. R. Holderby will officially close the program. Following this, the Ladies' Memorial association will decorate each grave of a Confederate soldier in the cemetery, a squad of soldiers will fire a volley of shots and a bugler will blow "taps."

In many churches and schools in the city special programs will be rendered and speakers will pay tribute to those who fought for the Lost Cause.

A tribute to the women of the south who knitted clothes, made uniforms and stood guard at home while husbands, brothers and sweethearts went to the front, also will have a place in ceremonies. The women, not less heroic than the men, played a part in the struggles of the 60's that will never die in the memory of southerners.

Trammell Scott is marshal of the day for Atlanta's parade, with Scott Candler as chief of staff. A large number of aides, special officers and others will work in conjunction with these two officials and with representatives of the Ladies' Memorial association in carrying out the program.

ATLANTAN TO SPEAK
AT SAVANNAH SERVICE.

Savannah, Ga., April 25.—(Special.) Despite the usually pressing Saturday business, practically all retail and wholesale houses in Savannah will close all day tomorrow for Memorial day.

The scheduled ball game between Savannah High and Benedictine has been called off for tomorrow in tribute to Confederate veterans and the Dixie dead.

A military parade with 10,000, representing a score of organizations, will feature the day here, with evening celebrations of quiet kind.

Hundreds will go to historic Midway church, where Hope Alexander, of Atlanta, will be the anniversary orator for the Midway society, and Rev. Dr. A. B. Patterson, the Memorial day speaker for the Daughters of the Confederacy.

WILLINGHAM TO SPEAK ON JACKSON PROGRAM.

Jackson, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)

Memorial day will be observed in Jackson Saturday, the program being in charge of Larkin Watson chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy. Colonel Frank Willingham, of Forsyth, veteran of the World war and officer in the Georgia National guard, will be the orator. At 10 o'clock the Confederate veterans will be taken in automobiles to the Jackson cemetery, where the graves of soldiers will be covered with flowers.

Exercises at the courthouse will begin at 11 o'clock. In addition to the speaking, there will be a number of patriotic songs. The Jackson Rifles and Children of the Confederacy will take part in the program. Following the exercise in the court room, the U. D. C. chapter will serve dinner to the veterans and their wives. Jackson Rifles, members of the Children of the Confederacy and ministers of the city.

Camp Barnett No. 1114, U. C. V., will hold its annual meeting Saturday morning and elect officers for the year and select delegates to the state and national reunion.

SPARTA TO HONOR CIVIL WAR VETS

Sparta, Ga., April 25.—(Special.) Plans have all been completed for the celebration of Confederate memorial day here tomorrow.

The exercises will be held in Pierce Memorial Methodist church. Rev. Lee Hale, pastor of Culverton Methodist church, will be speaker. After the exercises all veterans, their wives and ministers of Hancock county will be served a barbecue dinner at the home of Mrs. W. A. Martin. Banks will be closed and a general holiday declared.

HOLDEN SPEAKS AT LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ga., April 25.—(Special.)—The John B. Gordon chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy was sponsor here today at the Confederate memorial exercises. Including a number of patriotic songs and an address together with an old-fashioned basket dinner, the program was one of the best ever staged here in honor of the veterans of the lost cause.

Frank Holden, of Athens, who is representative in the present general assembly from Clark county, was the orator of the occasion and delivered a notable address.

CHARLES MURPHY'S DEATH.
In the death of Charles F. Murphy at his home in New York City yesterday morning, Tammany Hall loses a virile and courageous leader, New York loses the most prominent figure in her municipal and state political affairs, and the nation loses a man who has risen from the poverty of the East Side to a position of responsibility and power.

Once a day laborer in a wire factory and subsequently a horse-car driver, Murphy's political instinct would not be denied, and in 1902, at the age of 44, he succeeded Richard Croker as leader of Tammany Hall.

It has been said that man is by nature a political being. Viewed in this light, if in no other, the late boss of Tammany was very much a man. Few politicians have been endowed with more sagacity, more courage, more devotion to an organization than has Charles F. Murphy. Few men, so powerful in politics, have been less domineering around the council table. He was of the shrewd rather than of the blustering type. He always played the game frankly, honestly and on the "top of the table."

When it became known in Washington that the great Tammany leader had succumbed to a sudden attack of indigestion, Senator Copeland, of New York, announced his death from the floor of the senate—a signal honor for a private citizen. "Many of us in this chamber knew him and loved him," said Senator Copeland, in concluding his remarks.

In his sixty-sixth year and still at the height of his political power, Charles F. Murphy has been touched by the hand of death. The Great Leveler knows no difference between peasant and king—between a poverty-stricken boy and a powerful political boss. He "touches His dreamless slumbers" to the eyelids of each and they fall asleep.

The death of Mr. Murphy will probably have no significant bearing on the approaching national democratic convention. Governor Al Smith, a close friend and a Tammanyite, is the titular head of the party in New York state, and in the greater city Mr. Murphy had his trained lieutenants who had "carry on," as he would have done had he lived.

ON THE EXCHANGE.

A peculiar thing occurred in the stock market during the week just closing: the reaction of the market to the passing of the bonus bill by a vote which practically assures it becoming a law.

For weeks it was generally conceded that stocks and securities would naturally suffer a slump with the passage of the bill, and everywhere was the opinion that this bill was economically wrong. In the last analysis, perhaps, it is economically wrong.

Previous to its actual passage the market, therefore, discounted its passage, so traders said, with the resultant slump in prices. Then, following the overwhelming vote in its favor in the senate, stocks went up, on the strength of the exclusion of the cash option amendment. So the event that was expected to prove bearish has, on the other hand, proved a stimulus to the market.

Another upset during the week was the department of commerce's report on automobile production for the month of March, which actually showed a gain over February and over the month of March in 1923. This report came after it had been announced that the so-called curtailment in auto production would show up in the figures for the last month.

Brokers say there is a fairly strong undertone to the market in stocks at the present time, although they do not believe there is evidence of a definite upward trend. There may be further advances before the spring is over, but there is distinct absence of advice at the present time to buy stocks for a long pull upward. In other words, the market is in a trading area, and will be in such an area for some time.

There is unusually large short interests at the present, and this must be taken into consideration in the very near future. There is also the dividend meeting of steel corporation to be held on the twenty-ninth, and should the directors go over the fifty-cent extra mark, there might be another story to tell.

RECREANT CITIZENSHIP.

That government by minority is coming about in the United States on account of the indifference of the people to their duties as citizens, is the view of F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers' association.

He discussed this deplorable feature in our national life with remarkable force in a radio address delivered in New York Thursday evening.

Among other things he said: "A large percentage of the people neither exercise their right nor give heed to their duties as citizens. Instead of denouncing Washington, the people have themselves to blame for not taking a more lively and intelligent interest in the selection of their representatives. It is through the indifference of the people that we are becoming a government by minority. We are dominated by groups and blocs because the voters do not vote.

"The investigations now going on in Washington have disclosed a situation which has shocked the moral sense of the nation. Those who have watched the proceedings are only a little less astounded by the manner of their conduct than by the facts revealed. The desire to protect the interests of the people at times seems lost in the scramble to make political capital for current consumption. Surfeited by a mass of irrelevant, fantastic and immaterial testimony from witnesses of unquestioned incompetency, the public is now turning away in disgust. But whatever Washington is, it is nothing more nor less than the reflection of the people. Its faults can be corrected only by the constant vigilance of an intelligent electorate."

Truer words were never spoken than these and they reflect not only the most serious menace to our national life, but can with equal force and truthfulness be reduced to political conditions in states. Particularly—and unfortunately—do they apply to Georgia.

In the presidential election of 1920 less than one-half of the legal voters voted, and in the congressional election of 1922 less than 40 per cent. Had Harding received the entire vote cast, democratic, republican, and all, he would then have been put into office by a minority of the voters. It is interesting to note by how small a vote certain men were put in the senate in 1922. Brookhart, of Iowa, received only 29 per cent of the possible legal vote. La Follette, of Wisconsin, received 28 per cent, Dill, of Washington, 17 per cent, and Ferris, of Michigan, 16 per cent, and so on. Whatever delinquency there is in the government today reflects the delinquency of the people in their duty of taking an interest in government.

The constitution, Mr. Shepherd said, provides not for a pure democracy but for a representative democracy, under which men were to be selected best qualified to execute the business of government, and who "were not supposed to keep their ears to the ground for the whisperings of every voter in regard to the business of government, but in their capacity as representatives were expected to act in accordance with their best judgment, like the officers and directors of a corporation, elected by the stockholders because of their ability and fitness to carry on the business."

Think of how applicable these words are to Georgia. The general assembly has a number of excellent men in its membership, but on the whole it is not representative. It is sufficed with politicians who almost exist from year to year off of the game of politics, in some mysterious way.

There is no such thing as a wholly representative choice of the people in Georgia for the very reason that a majority of the people who are qualified to vote stay away from the polls; and as to upstanding men of affairs offering to serve in public office, that is extremely rare. There are some who make the sacrifice unselfishly, and for the desire to be of genuine service, but relatively speaking they are few. That is one reason—the chief reason, indeed—why politics has reached the low ebb it has; why demagogues flourish; why "bosses" and "dictators" crack their whips; why the state and the nation too often suffer from mediocrity in public administrations.

The indifference of the people in these matters was never better illustrated than in the last presidential primary in Georgia. It is hoped and believed, however, that that disgraceful mass meeting held under the misnomer of a "state democratic convention" that followed it, may arouse the people to a keener interest in their solemn duty as citizens, else the situation will grow worse instead of better.

Muscle Shoals Issue Demands of Congress Sober, Serious Action

Editor Constitution: Press dispatches from Washington covering hearings of the senate committee on Muscle Shoals contain evidence of an encouraging nature to those who wish to see that matter considered without hysteria and in a manner worthy of the importance of the interests involved.

Political considerations have probably had much weight in this case. First, the republicans came near being able to jump the subject in their enthusiastic rush to discredit everything that had been done by Woodrow Wilson and the democratic congress of his day. Then political considerations of the presidential possibilities of Henry Ford seemed to want to give the great power plant to Henry in the hope of appeasing his political ambitions. The statement that Mr. Ford would make the farmer rich by giving him cheap fertilizers also appeared to have great weight among leaders from agricultural sections.

Now that the people have had time to give the proposition more careful thought and the enormous value of the property begins to penetrate the public mind, we see indications of a more deliberate view of the case. The reasonable thing to do would be to work out a plan by which the people could keep a hand on the control of the property, and the government could be disposed of to any private owner. It can and should be held for government use for the benefit of the people for all time, and the government should have no more than 50 years should ever be given to any man or corporation.

The electrical power developed by this plant, at the Muscle Shoals, will combine the industrial interests of this section. Strict control and careful supervision of this great power plant by representatives of the people will forever deliver it from the hands of the power monopolies.

Every individual and every corporation should have exactly equal treatment before the law. Gifts of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of natural resources, such as this water power, are absolutely indefensible as any standpoint.

There is no possibility of objection for making anyone a gift of the Muscle Shoals property, and I believe the people are beginning to see the absurdity of such a move. We would all like to have Mr. Ford and his great industries, or part of them, centered somewhere in the south—the closer to us the better—but why give so much to get him out of the north when we have no guaranty that he will do anything?

FRENCH COUNTESS TELLS OF CARE OF HEROES' GRAVES

Countess Constance Hillier de Caen, of Paris, one of France's heroines of the world war, is in Atlanta on a visit of several weeks, and plans to talk with many of the city's leaders here of the care being taken of graves of American soldiers in France. The countess, known to many members of the city's social and business circles, is on her seventh trip to this country since the war.

She has shown the care taken of the graves of Miss Camille O'Brien, Atlanta nurse, who was killed in France.

The countess is in America as a private citizen, and not as a representative of the French government, and has done all of her work without compensation. She will be at the Cecil Hotel during her stay in Atlanta.

FRANCES BROWN SINGS AT LUNCHEON MEETING

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

The Georgia Bankers' association, that was just a little ripple on a storm-gathering sea. There were several other cases of the same kind, but the thing that amused me most was packing a lot of men in the convention who were not delegates, but who voted as Judge Newell's "jailing call" with as flagrant an unconcern for convention and propriety as a bunch of pool-room on-lookers would vote a winner in a cock-fight.

Believe me, that bunch was determined there should be no "yea and nay" vote or anything. In that event, of course, only those legally entitled to a vote could have a voice, and that was exactly what the cabalists proposed should not occur.

It is all over—for the time being. There are other things to do. The farmers are busy, or should be. The economic year promises well, fortunately, and the Lord knows everybody is sick and tired of "politics," although this is the nation's great political year.

But the sun will never rise on a day that does not rebuke the traducers of democracy in this state, and as time passes the outrageous proceedings of Randolph and his conspirators will grow the more repulsive to Georgians who believe in political liberty, in the rights of the people, in the autonomy of counties, and in the orderly and legal proceedings of assemblies.

The real story of the whole disgraceful manipulation of the Randolph cabal has not yet been told—but it will be told.

For the moment, however, let's turn to things that are constructive and not destructive—to things that help the people, materially, and not disturb and create unrest. Georgia has a big economic program ahead that is worth more than all the "politics" on earth.

Not long ago I was a speaking guest at one of the most enthusiastic dinner-meetings of a board of trade I ever attended. It was at Elberton—the Granite City.

A movement was started to build a new hotel. In ten days subsequently every dollar of the stock had been subscribed.

That is what I love—development, progress, enterprise, the spirit of the builder. I expect to tell the story of that visit soon.

I attended and spoke recently at a meeting of group four of the Georgia Bankers' association, at Americus. Among the entertainment features was a magnificent luncheon, at which several hundred were present. I learned that 15 per cent of the progressive Sumter county that I ever knew before—and it is a story that I am going to tell shortly. I have been too busy, but it is coming.

Georgia is all right. Politics disturbs and distorts, and sometimes a man or a group of men become "marked" because they mistakenly think that anything can be "put over" with impunity; but economically Georgia is great—and as the axiom goes, "it is great to be a Georgian."

Cooperative Marketing Is a Proven Success

Editor Constitution: I notice in The Constitution that the Cotton association has filed suit against a large dealer in cotton for publishing alleged false statements.

I am a member of the association and have delivered my cotton to it for the past two years and am highly pleased with the results and have much hope in cooperative marketing for solving a great deal of our problems as farmers.

This attack is unjust on the association and the farmers of my county, several hundred, who are members of the association, resent it because it is a direct slap at them in their efforts to improve agricultural conditions by self help.

For your information I might say that I was named a director of the association and for business reasons I was unable to accept, but I am in position to know that the affairs of the association have been conducted satisfactorily to the farmers of my county (Bulloch), which stands second among all of the counties of the state as far as the number of bales delivered to the association last year is concerned.

Last year when a gentleman, apparently unnamed, from Fitzgerald took a shot at the association I want to say that Mr. Hollomon handled him well. You were just to him and any other fellow who might be inclined to desire to serve cooperative marketing and The Constitution's efforts to help the farmers.

Hollomon's articles are read and enjoyed by the farmers of my county and I want to ask him on behalf of others in this county as well as myself to join the association in the fight against the forces of ignorance and to support cooperative marketing and to defend our association, which is making a record in putting our farmers' interests in a better position than they are in at present.

It was also charged that the conductor was negligent in failing to pull the bell cord as soon as one coach left the track. The court held that the conductor could not be held responsible for the negligence of the conductor, but that he was himself in the same peril as all the passengers at the time of the accident.

HUNGER PANG.
I don't know exactly what a pang is, but I know it when I feel it. Dr. Webster, seems a little vague about pangs—but I ought to know what people mean when they tell of their pangs of hunger, for I have had these pangs described to me in eloquent words and several languages, and as a general rule, or so it seems to me, at any rate, the very people who show no evidence of having endorsed hunger—on the contrary—are the most eloquent in describing these pangs. I have tried to point out the overeating involves a kind of intoxication, and when one addicted to such intoxication misses a meal, accidentally or intentionally, he is sure to suffer symptoms of deprivation which are akin to the suffering of the narcotic addict when deprived of his customary dose of drug or alcohol.

In the human these symptoms are out of all proportion, and no doubt they are largely psychical rather than physical in origin, just as the suffering of the narcotic addict is largely psychical rather than physical in origin, just as the suffering of the narcotic addict is largely psychical rather than physical in origin.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, April 25.—A single vacant table for two in a crowded midnight supper club, recently emptied by the young Broadway butterfly who engaged it, had been slain in her boudoir apartment a few hours before. But Broadway danced on.

It was at this table the young beauty, who only a few years ago had come from a cross roads hamlet, sat weaving her golden webs around the middle-aged men who Narcissus-like sought the reflection of youth in her fair face.

The girl was typical of the type one sees with the old flaneur of the boulevards whose hair has departed with illusions. She was blonde, bobbed and vivacious. She packed her kit bag with dreams and came to Broadway to become a golden moth about the white hot flange.

Youth is their supreme asset but they value it lightly. In a few years their beauty is tarnished by dissipation. Then they go into the discard and become Broadway's discarded flowers. And Broadway believes in letting the dead bury their dead.

The men who seek these girls and for a little while bestow limousines and jewels are usually past middle age and divorced. Barbers and tailors succeed in clipping off many years and with this semblance of youth they seek the holy grails with signed ardor.

In the past year three of these girls Broadway calls "blue eye beauties" have been found mysteriously dead. In one case the police found pictures of prominent men, who had been devoted to them, in their apartments.

There is always an end to the battery of tricks—sometimes it is murder and other times it is disgrace and a slab in the potter's field. But whatever it is this light living street always exacts the cruel and inevitable toll.

He sells pocket knives on Forty-second street after gathering a crowd by feigning to do a bit of sleight of hand. There is a deep scar across his chest and he wears a lumpy up shoe to hide a limp. Among the curb vendors he is known as "Mickey."

Before the late war he held a respectable position in a New York brokerage firm. When he came back wounded and scarred there was no place for him. (Copyright, 1924, for The Atlanta Constitution.)

April Building Permits Pass $1,000,000 Mark

This month will exceed all previous ones of 1924 in value of building permits issued, it was predicted Friday by C. J. Bowen, chief building inspector. Two large apartment buildings are to be issued either today or early next week, he said, while Friday permits already had boosted the total beyond the $1,000,000 mark.

The largest permit Friday was for remodeling the Whitehall street building occupied by M. Rich Bros. prior to their removal into the new building. The remodeling is to be done by Oscar Davis, owner, for W. F. Grant company, of New York, at a cost of $150,000.

Today Closes Brilliant Week.

This evening "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" bring to a close one of the most brilliant opera seasons in Atlanta's history.

However, although it will be a long year before we hear the world-famous singers again, there are many events in the near future which promise to be both interesting and beautiful.

Mothers' Day is not far off. Graduation comes with June. Weddings and anniversaries and birthdays somehow always crowd the spring and summer days.

We have a selection of wonderfully beautiful gifts appropriate for every occasion. Jewelry is always acceptable.

Plan ahead what you will give on these occasions which are not far off.

Story of The Opera

SATURDAY MATINEE: "FAUST"

Opera by Gounod.

(Sung in French)

Faust Edward Johnson
Mephistopheles Feodor Chaliapin
Valentine Lawrence Tibbett
Marguerite Frances Alda
Siel Ellen Dalossy
Marthe Kathleen Howard
Wagner Louis D'Angelo
(Incidental Dances by the Corps de Ballet)

Conductor, Giuseppe Bamboschek.

Faust, a German student, after a life of meditation and laborious research, becomes disgusted with the futility of human knowledge and his own inability to unravel the mystic secrets of nature. He summons to his aid the Spirit of Evil, who appears to him in the form of Mephistopheles. Through the supernatural power of the latter, Faust is straightway restored to youth, with all its passions and illusions, and is at the same time endowed with personal beauty and luxurious garb. These gifts are his in return for his pledge of his soul to the Spirit of Evil.

Mephistopheles, as in a vision, reveals to him the beautiful village maid, Marguerite, with whom the student falls instantaneously in love. He longs to become acquainted with her, and his wish is soon afterwards gratified.

Marguerite, equally noted for her loveliness and for her virtue, has been left by her soldier brother, Valentine, under the care of Dame Martha, but Faust, aided by the demoniacal influence of Mephistopheles (who is anxious to destroy another human soul) urges his suit with such ardor that Marguerite's resistance is at length overcome.

Valentine is slain. Valentine, Marguerite's brother, on returning with his comrades from the war, learns what has occurred; he challenges his sister's seducer, but through the intervention of Mephistopheles, he is slain in the encounter. Marguerite, horror-stricken at the calamity of which she is the cause, gives away to despair. Her reason becomes affected, and in a paroxysm of frenzy, she kills her infant by this crime, she is thrown in prison.

Faust, again aided by Mephistopheles, obtains access to her cell. They both eagerly urge her to fly, but Marguerite, in whom holier feelings have gained the ascendancy, spurns their proffered aid and places her sole reliance in prayer and repentance. Overcome at last by her remorse, with a prayer and forgiveness on her lips, the unhappy girl expires.

Mephistopheles triumphs at the catastrophe he has brought about, but a chorus of heavenly voices is heard proclaiming that there is pardon for the repentant sinner and the Evil One, foiled and overthrown, is driven from the scene of his crime, while the spirit of Marguerite, borne by ministering angels, waits to its eternal home.

Silvio Beniamino Gigli
Conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

It is Easter, and the peasants are keeping holiday. Turiddu, the son of Manina Lucia, village tavernkeeper, returned from military service, and by his manner of a soldier, has become the favorite of all the girls of the village, among whom Santuzza has proved the chosen one—to her own betrayal.

Before his enlistment, Turiddu had courted Lola, a pretty coquette, but on his return finds her the bride of Alfio, the village carrier. In wounded love and vanity, he turns to Santuzza, but, meeting Lola afterwards, he drops into the old way, and deceives Santuzza, while Lola is faithful to her husband Alfio.

The intrigue coming to Alfio's ears on Easter morning from Santuzza, who is distracted by jealousy and remorse, he challenges Turiddu unwillingly and is slain.

The Cast.

Nedda Luciezia Bori
Canio Giovanni Martinelli
Beppe Angelo Badal
Silvio Vincenzo Renschiglian
Tonio Giuseppe Danzani
Conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

The scene of the story is laid in Calabria at the time of the feast of the Virgin di Mezzagosto. During the prelude Tonio comes forward as in the prelude of ancient Greek tragedy, and explains that the subject is taken from real life.

The first act shows the meeting of two roads at the entrance of a village at the right a traveling theater. Villagers greet the arrival of a troupe of strolling players. Canio, the Punchinello and chief of the troupe, invites the crowd to attend the performance at night and then goes off with Beppe (the harlequin) and several peasants to drink at the tavern. Tonio, the clown, remains behind to care for the donkey, but takes advantage of Canio's absence to declare his love to Nedda, who is the Columbine of the troupe and Canio's wife. Upon being pressed for a kiss, she strikes Tonio with a whip, and he goes off vowing to be revenged.

Then Silvio, a rich young villager, joins Nedda and tries to induce her to leave her husband and the forlorn life of a stroller, which she loathes, to run away with him. Tonio spies on the lovers and runs to fetch Canio, the husband. They return to hear Nedda's parting words to Silvio, in which she agrees to meet him at night. Canio breaks from the restraining hands of Tonio to attack Silvio, but the latter succeeds in escaping over the walls without being recognized.

Canio, baffled and jealous, orders Nedda to tell the name of her lover, but she refuses, and Canio is about to stab her, when Beppe intervenes. He persuades Nedda to go to the theater to dress for her part, and induces Canio to prepare for the performance. The act closes with a cry of despair from Canio, who is obliged to act comically with death in his soul.

Second Act.

In the second act the peasants arrive to witness the performance. By chance, this proves to be a proof of all that has taken place in the first act. Tonio, who plays the part of the idiot servant, makes a declaration of love to Columbine (Nedda), which she receives with scorn. Harlequin (Beppe), in love with Columbine, then appears, but after a short interview is surprised by the Pagliaccio (Canio), who arrived just as Columbine is helping Harlequin to run away and hears her repeat to him the very words which she had used to Silvio when she bade him meet him after the play that night.

At this, Canio loses his head, forgets his part and furiously demands the name of her lover. Nedda laughs in order to put the public off the scent, and they, failing to grasp the truth, are much amused. Suddenly, however, Canio, beside himself with rage and jealousy, seizes the knife on the table and stabs Nedda to the heart, declaring that she will reveal the name of her lover with her despairing cry. She calls to Silvio for help, and he attempts to reach her, but is attacked by Canio, who slaps him also. The peasants disarm Canio, who says stupidly: "The comedy is finished."

Fedora is a lyric drama in three acts, adapted by Signor Colautti from the famous play by Sardou.

It is a melodrama in the French play-wright's familiar style; a gripping and intense piece, with moving and theatrically effective. Such a drama does not invite musical treatment and only in a few places does music justify its intrusion into the dramatic scheme.

In brief the plot is as follows: The Princess Fedora Romanov is engaged to be married to Count Vladimir Andrejch, of whose dissolute habits she has suspicion. While Fedora is visiting at the count's house he is brought in mortally wounded. He dies and suspicion fastens on Count Loris Ipanov. The police at once institute a search for Ipanov, while Fedora makes a vow to avenge her lover's murder.

The second act shows Fedora receiving her friends in Paris. Among the guests is Loris, whose affections she contrives to win. He tells her of his love, and upon Fedora's announcing her decision to return to St. Petersburg, Loris admits that he is a refugee from justice, implicated in the murder of the count. Fedora grants him an interview after her guests are gone, planning to extort from him a confession of guilt, and yet secretly hoping that he will be able to exculpate himself.

Loris finally tells her that he killed the count because he had been his wife's lover. Fedora's newly-awakened affections for Loris burst into flame, and she proves to her count's perfidy, and they plight their troth. Later Fedora learns that an incriminating letter which she has sent to the Russian authorities has brought about the arrest and execution of Loris' brother, which in turn causes her mother's death. Loris, on returning to Fedora's villa, receives letters from St. Petersburg and learns the truth. He is beside himself with grief and vows to avenge himself upon the one that dealt him the blow. Fedora, crazed with remorse and fear, finally confesses her guilt. Loris bitterly casts her from him, and she poisons herself. As she dies Loris gives her his pardon.

Modern Trend.

In analyzing the possibilities that Fedora offers to singers and orchestra in so far as material for "putting it in" is concerned, one readily sees that the stars on the stage have a better chance than the stars in the pit. Fedora, another product of the so-called modern Italian school of the early nineties, still shows the earnest efforts of our young composers to get away from the conventionalism of writing arias and ensembles with orchestral accompaniments, and to attempt to unify stage and orchestra in one compact, vital unit after the German melodrama.

As a matter of fact, Giordano almost succeeds in attaining this effect although he gives no proof of a leit-motif construction in his opera, nor does he endeavor to blend his vocal and orchestral score in a symphonic manner. With the exception of the instance of the intermezzo for the orchestra, which is a direct replica of the tenor's aria in the first act, "Amor ti vieta di non amar," no example of polyphonic unification is to be found in the score. The arias and duets as well as all ensemble numbers are accompanied by the orchestra in the old-fashioned manner of the early Italian school save for the finales of the first and second acts. This Italian opera with slavish favor is derived from material almost entirely derived from the Russian folk songs. In order to give Fedora a just place among the operas of today, we must confine ourselves to a study of the drama as laymen.

Fedora makes an impression. It has pages of sweeping dramatic music, it contains at least two arias of compelling effect, and it also offers us an innovation as far as the grand opera stage is concerned. The thought of the piano nocturne during the second act is a decided novelty. Giordano, who incidentally is a clever performer of the keyboard, conceived the idea of combining the dramatic development of the climax during the reception scene with a piano solo. He introduces his Russian virtuoso at the psychological moment, or at the exact time when a dialogue is mostly needed, and by having the piano nocturne played subdued and sort of off-stage, the composer builds his melodies as counter-point to the piano composition. The effect is good and allows the audience to follow the action down stage between the tenor and the soprano and yet receive the full perception of the nocturne.

One peculiar aspect of the score of Fedora is the opening of the second act. The character of the movement being a brilliant waltz of the Viennese type, with a decided ball-room swing, does not quite coincide with the general theme of Fedora nor with the grandeur that one expects from a grand opera presentation.

The performance that the Metropolitan company arranged for Atlanta had by far one of the best balanced casts of the season. Martinelli, with his magnificent stature of artist and actor; Mme. Easton, our American prima donna par excellence, and Scotti in his diplomatic role, presented a trio of gigantic proportions, and their singing and acting cast a spell in the audience never to be forgotten.

Miss Maria Konze, as the countess, created a most favorable impression especially in the last act.

stage and orchestra into one unified vital unit, without the choral and aria themes of the older conception.

Florence Easton matched Martinelli's superb voice and acted with her own intense passion and tender sweetness.

Reasons for Success.

To her creative art, to Martinelli's magnificent work, to Scotti's masterful portrayal and interpretation and Papi's hypnotic graceful conducting, and Maria's tripping, lifting voice, the greatest audience that the Auditorium has held this season paid tribute with sweeping and repeated applause that assumed the character of a mighty ovation in the second act.

"Fedora" is an innovation, a novelty, but a novelty with happy surprises. It misses perhaps those old-fashioned haunting arias, those lilting never-to-be-forgotten melodies of "Trovatore," "Cavalleria" or "Rigoletto," but it has its moments of stupendous dramatic music and impressive moments of gigantic import.

There are, it is true, scenes when one misses the old-time grandeur and the massiveness of other operas, but this defect, if it be a defect, is the aim of the modern school.

Madame Florence Easton, the prima donna of American grand opera, as the Princess in "Fedora," combined with Martinelli, won one of the greatest triumphs of this season's varied program. In their love scenes, enacted with the most superb emotion and electrifying pathos, they brought the great audience under the sway of their magic acting and wondrous voices.

In the second act and in the last act they both reached out for the acme of operatic art. Madame Easton was step by step following in the footsteps of the Divine Sarah. It was her hour of triumph and in her triumph she was beautiful to behold.

This afternoon Feodor Chaliapin and the Canadian tenor, Edward Johnson, will play the leading role of Gounod's "Faust." That will be Atlanta's last time to see the great Feodor before he departs for a three-year tour of the European continent. In the evening two popular old-time favorites, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" will be presented.

With a pang and a tug at the heartstrings, thoughts and memories will travel back to the days when Enrico Caruso was in his glory, but others will strive to reach his marvelous interpretation.

IT is perfectly simple, easily understood, and logical, why the ROUND OAK Gas Range uses less fuel and performs more satisfactorily. The moment the oven burner is lighted, in place of having to wait to heat through the oven bottom, or generate enough heat to crowd up through the side walls, the heat starts circulating instantly, and before it reaches the outlet the last possible amount it trapped and radiated back into the oven. This is so interesting and important to your pocketbook that it should be demonstrated from the range itself, remembering it is found only in the

F. Crenshaw and Lamprecht in Golf Finals

Lamprecht Beats Crisman; Crenshaw Drops B. Baugh; Final Match Is 36 Holes

BY PAUL WARWICK.

F. Crenshaw, who hails from the University of Alabama, and Fred Lamprecht, a product of Tulane, will join in gentle jousting over the East Lake course today with the title of Southern Intercollegiate Golf association and some desirable silverware at stake. The title match will go for 36 holes.

After two days fairly shot to the core with golf, while first rounds, second rounds, semi-finals and all manner of first flight and consolation flights were being played, Crenshaw and Lamprecht burst full-blown into finals' places late Friday afternoon, Crenshaw by having beat his teammate, Little Bobby Baugh, of Birmingham, and Tulsa, 3 up and 2 to 2; Lamprecht by having eliminated Glen Crisman, of Selma and Tusculoo, 6 up and 4 to 2.

It can easily be seen that Alabama, fulfilling predictions, has played quite a part in the tournament. And the score by which Fred Lamprecht put Crisman out of the running is scarcely fair to Glen's rating as a golfer. He was not working the old putter with his usual consistency and was pitted against a man of such very high golfing ability that he needed every ounce of his attainments to win.

Three from Alabama. But three of the semi-finals were from Alabama—Crisman, Baugh and Crenshaw. It is to be doubted and doubted strongly if there is any institution in the country which can put such a formidable outfit on the links, especially where team play is counted.

This should be a fine struggle today between Lamprecht and Crenshaw. Both boys are on their game and are boys who have an especially good game to be on. Fred is a hard hitting rascal, knocking the little old angle for just about as much dish.

GIORDANO'S "FEDORA," PRESENTED HERE FOR FIRST TIME, WINS WARM APPLAUSE FROM CROWDED AUDITORIUM

STARS CENTER INTEREST AT CAPITAL CITY CLUB DANCE

Two Performances Today Bring Season to Close

The beauty and freshness of the women in the audience Friday night that heard "Fedora," and the spontaneous enjoyment of the evening, which was very apparent, would have carried no hint to a stranger unacquainted with Atlanta's strenuous program this week, that these same well-gowned, fresh-looking, pretty women had been doing this same thing ever since Monday, and faced for today a prospect even more full in two performances of opera, besides breakfasts or luncheons, tea dances and supper parties, even on top of Friday night festivities after the opera which brought the society world home about the time this paper went to press.

The Giordano opera, one of pictorial and lyric beauty, was presented here for the first time at the fifth performance of the Metropolitan Opera company at the Auditorium for the season of 1924.

Scotti, Martinelli, Ellen Dalossy, Florence Easton and Queena Mario carried the audience with them in their thrilling portrayals of this intriguing Italian opera.

Scotti was welcomed back again to the hearts of Atlanta opera-goers in a setting of drawing-room elegance which suits him so well. The audience enjoyed to the fullest Martinelli's prodigious utterance of full, beautiful and exquisite tone. The work of Florence Easton was, as always, artistically satisfying to a very appreciative and large audience.

Interest Great

In Today's Program.

Between acts, too, the audience plied with questions those of the stars cast in "Fedora," but themselves enjoying it in the boxes with Atlanta acquaintances, these questions all centering around the two American singers Atlanta is to hear for the first time Saturday—Edward Johnson, the Canadian, and Lawrence Tibbets, Californian, the latter making a successful debut in New York recently in the same part he will sing in Atlanta—Valentin in Gounod's "Faust."

Their appearance will divide curiosity over the much anticipated "Mephistopheles" of Chaliapin, a part so different from the "Mephistopheles" of Boito, which he presented here last year; different, yet as interesting.

Lovely Madam Frances Alia sings "Marguerite" in Gounod's "Faust" this afternoon, the only French opera sung in this season's repertoire. She is always appealing, beautiful and in exquisite voice in this role. Atlanta audiences rely upon her marvelous portrayal as a high-light in every opera in which she is cast.

With such artists in the cast Saturday for matinee and evening performances as Ellen Dalossy, Rosa Ponselle, Kathleen Howard, Lucrezia Bori, Beniamino Gigli, Flora Perini and Henriette Wakfield, the productions will be of outstanding musical importance. The operas of Saturday will be conducted by the magic baton of Gennari Papi, Giuseppe Bamboshek and Roberto Moranzoni.

Wonderfully Gowned Women Present.

The audience matched in its enthusiasm the wondrous theme of the opera, and in its splendor of raiment equaled the cosmopolitan setting. Rich and gleaming metal brocades, soft chiffon velvets, lustrous and shimmering satins, filmy chiffon and lace were used in the gowns and wraps worn by the women in the audience. Magnificent necklaces and bracelets of diamonds and pearls enveloped swanlike throats and fair, shapely arms.

Singers of Metropolitan Honor Guests of Occasion

Still thrilling to the triumph which Giovanni Martinelli and Florence Easton had just won in "Fedora," hundreds of Atlantans repaired last night to the Capital City club after the opera to enjoy the brilliant supper-dance—a feature in the week of social society.

"Fedora" had been the newest opera to be greeted by Atlanta music patrons, and the enthusiasm with which new productions are always received was undiminished in the past performance occasion. Social life in Atlanta centers daily and nightly in this town club throughout the spring musical festivities, and the entertainments given at the Capital City club during opera week are always enjoyable and wonderful events on the week's calendar.

The stars of the Metropolitan company were again honor guests, their presence always adding interest to all of the occasions which they attend. The stars were seated at a large central table which was beautifully decorated, carrying out the musical idea.

A long plateau of lovely flowers graced the center of the table. The border of the plateau was of deep yellow tulips, the musical instruments, violin, flute, horn and banjo, being embedded in the center and worked out in yellow daisies, pink roses, violets and orchids. Tapering crystal vases filled with the same blossoms were placed at each end of the table. The place cards, bonbons and ices further carried out the musical idea.

The other tables were graced with white French baskets filled with a variety of flowers, the handles of the baskets tied with pastel tulle.

Many Dinner Parties Given.

A large group having supper together included Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Martin, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cowles, Mrs. Stacy Ernest Hill, Miss Marion Van Dyke, Sam McAlister, John B. Munson, of Cincinnati, and Dr. B. McH. Cline.

OPERA WEEK ENDS WITH THREE SUPPER-DANCES TONIGHT

Affairs at Capital City Terrace and Biltmore

Supper dances at the Capital City club, the Atlanta Biltmore and the Georgian Terrace will bring to a close the continuous round of gay events which have marked the fourteenth season of opera presented by the Metropolitan Opera company. Three operas will provide a veritable feast of music as the climax to the most splendid opera season yet experienced in Atlanta.

The afternoon will be given over to the gorgeous strains of "Faust," with Aida in her favorite role, "Marguerite," and Chaliapin surpassing his previous great performance in "Boris Godunov" as Mephistopheles. The role of Faust will be Edward Johnson's premiere in Atlanta, and the ballet will be an attraction rivaling in charm the great choruses.

The two operas which make up the evening performance will present a galaxy of stars. There will be Rosa Ponselle, Lucrezia Bori, Beniamino Gigli and Giovanni Martinelli to bring to a glorious close a week of entrancing melody.

One of the largest individual parties at the supper-dance at the Capital City club will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Chandler.

Many will go from the opera matinee to the Georgian Terrace and Biltmore tea-dances, which will be a pleasing event of the late afternoon. Mrs. Claude Sims, of Jacksonville, Fla., the guest of Mrs. Walter Sims, will be the honor guest of the party at which Mrs. W. H. Durden will entertain at the tea-dance.

Davenport Edwards will entertain a large party at the Biltmore tea-dance in honor of Miss Florence Boykin and Miss Frances Robbins, of Mississippi.

A bridge-ten of the afternoon will be given by Mrs. Clyde Burch. Mrs. P. Charlton Hudson, of Columbus, will be hostess at a beautiful breakfast at the Biltmore.

Entertaining at the Georgian Terrace tea-dance will be Mrs. John W. Smathers, Mrs. J. E. Duffel, Mrs. S. P. Williams, Mrs. Eberhardt, Mrs. Jesse Couch.

Mrs. A. C. Read will be the honor guest at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., at the Capital City club.

Young Girls at Afternoon Tea

Left, Miss Gray Poole, and, right, Miss Catherine Smith, two lovely and attractive members of the younger social contingent, enjoying a cup of tea following one of the opera matinees.

Opera Visitors Assemble for Tea At Woman's Club

The regular Friday afternoon teas assembled a large number of members and opera visitors at the Atlanta Woman's club.

A profusion of lilies and smilax were used as decorations throughout the clubhouse. Tea was served at the small tables, which were adorned with small baskets of spring flowers.

Mrs. T. J. Butler entertained a party in honor of Mrs. H. T. Price, of Greensboro, N. C., the attractive guest of Mrs. J. R. England. Invited to meet the honor guest were Mrs. England, Mrs. J. E. Spurlock, Mrs. Van Goepfer, Mrs. George Allingham, Mrs. John Sage, Miss Minnie Daniel, Mrs. J. Z. Elliott and Mrs. Steger.

Mrs. J. C. Oliver entertained in honor of Mrs. S. W. Sabotti, of Mt. Airy, N. C., and for Mrs. L. W. Wright, of Winston-Salem, N. C., who are the guests of Mrs. George Fauss. The guests included a group of close friends.

Mrs. Roger Jones, of Selma, Ala., was honor guest at a party at which Mrs. C. K. Ayer entertained. Invited to meet the honor guest were Mrs. Chilton White, Mrs. Jack Spence, Mrs. Clarence Coppidge, Mrs. Victor Krieger, Mrs. L. P. Wood, Miss Mary Mendall and Mrs. William Penn White of Augusta.

Mrs. D. F. Stevenson entertained a small party of friends in honor of Misses Gladys Comforter and Gladys Mosley, of the State College at Tallahassee, Fla.

Mrs. N. D. Henry entertained seven close friends at bridge.

Among others entertaining were Mrs. O. C. Poundstone, Mrs. Homer Ashford, Mrs. C. M. Barnwell, Mrs. W. M. Carmichael and Miss Marjory Webster.

IN THE BOXES

Atlanta's newest acquaintance among the great musical works of the world—Giordano's "Fedora"—was greeted Friday night by an audience splendid in its proportions and sparkling in its brilliance.

The opera, sung in French, was well received by those who filled the arena and the colorful crescent of boxes.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant entertained in their box Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wilmer, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Owens.

On the musical program is the Georgia Railway and Power company's famous quartet, "The Harmony Four," also the world wardens' 16-piece orchestra under the direction of H. L. Heitman. The public is cordially invited.

Mrs. Davidson Honors Visitors

Mrs. N. C. Wright, of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Mrs. John Sabotti, of Mt. Airy, N. C., are honor guests at the elegantly appointed luncheon at which Mrs. Howard G. Davidson entertained at her home on West Sixth street Friday at 1:30 o'clock. These attractive visitors are among the prominent women attending opera in Atlanta.

The table was overlaid with a Venetian lace cloth and adorned the center was a basket of lovely spring flowers, including sweet peas, snapdragons, tulips and jonquils. Marking the guests' places were hand-painted blue birds and the favors were silver pencils.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Sabotti, Mrs. J. W. Popham, Mrs. Karl Tutt, Mrs. B. A. Schroeder, of Birmingham; Mrs. George Faust, Mrs. Robert B. Pearson, Mrs. Caleb Maddox, Mrs. J. C. Weekley. The guests motored to Stone Mountain after luncheon.

Crosses of Honor To Be Bestowed On War Veterans

Crosses of honor and crosses of service will be bestowed on Confederate veterans and World War veterans by the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., at the chapter house, 156 Juniper street, on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Charles T. Phillips, president of the chapter, will make the bestowal, and the occasion is the annual ceremonial observance of Memorial day.

Confederate veterans who will receive crosses of honor at the hands of the chapter will be J. A. Almand, T. E. Spruill, J. N. Henry, W. N. Johnston and Major J. H. Morgan.

Crosses of service will be bestowed for the first time by the chapter, this being the initial observance of this fitting testimonial to the men of southern lineage who fought in the recent war. Crosses of service were decreed by the general U. D. C. by the Birmingham convention in 1922 and bestowed for the first time at the Washington convention in 1923.

World War veterans on whom the crosses of service will be pinned are Captain J. Stanley Moore, Jr., Captain Howard H. McCall, Jr., Captain Charles T. Phillips, Jr., Lieutenant William Davis Jarrell, Jr., Lieutenant Walter Paschal Phillips.

All Confederate veterans and members of the chapter are invited to be present and coffee and sandwiches will be served to all who wish to remain at the chapter house until the hour set for the memorial exercises to be held by the Ladies' Memorial association and the memorial parade.

GIRL SHY

Rennie-Bell Wedding's Event Of Widespread Social Interest

Of widespread social interest throughout the south was the wedding on Thursday of Miss Nellie Rennie and John Inman Bell, which was solemnized at 10 o'clock in the morning at All Saints' Episcopal church.

Dr. W. W. Memminger performed the ceremony in the presence of a representative assembly of Atlantans, which included the families and a large number of friends of the young couple.

A selection of beautiful nuptial music was rendered during the assembling of the guests. A group of popular and familiar airs were played softly during the ceremony by Mr. Arnold.

Stately palms, ferns and southern smilax featured the handsome decorations of the church. The altar was banked high with palms, which formed a rich background for the tall, white, standards filled with Easter lilies and the cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers.

Miss Mary Rennie, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an exquisite gown of Nile green crepe de chine. The bridesmaids were simply fashioned, and the skirt accented plaited. Completing her costume was a small hat of green millan, and her flowers were a coronal of pastel shaded sweet peas.

The lovely young bride was smartly dressed in a traveling suit of navy blue and white. Her hat was a French model of dark blue Milan adorned with a pearl and rhinestone ornament. She wore a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. Bell and his bride left for a wedding trip, and later they will be at home to their friends in the Bellevue apartments, 76 East Fifth street.

Mrs. L. M. Rennie, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in black satin crepe, with hat to match, and her corsage was of red roses.

Miss Sarah Inman Bell, sister of the groom, was lovely in a model of black and white figured crepe, with becoming hat of black Milan, trimmed with white flowers.

Mrs. Bell is the daughter of Mrs. Lila M. Rennie, and since coming here to make her home two years ago from Charleston, S. C., has been a popular belle.

Mr. Bell is the son of Mrs. T. Howard Bell and a brother of Miss Sarah Bell, Inman Bell and Hugh Bell. His family is well-known throughout the south and is one of influence and culture.

Mr. Bell attended the Exeter school in New Hampshire; also spent three summers at Culver, in Indiana. During the World war he served in the United States navy and was stationed in Charleston.

Mr. Bell is a popular member of the social clubs and holds an important position with the McIntyre, Scott & Knight Co.

Miss Oliver Chosen Queen For May Day at Agnes Scott

On the afternoon of Saturday, May 3, at 4 o'clock, Agnes Scott will be the scene of the annual May Day festival. The May Day pageant will be opened with the crowning of the May queen, Miss Lucy Oliver, of Montgomery, Ala. Her trainbearers will be Miss Ruth Slack, Miss Master Paul McGinnis, the heralds will be Master Charles McKinney and Master Sam Sevier. An added attraction to this year's May day will be the Maypole dance by the queen's maids, Misses Evelyn King, Virginia Ordway, Weonona Peck, Augusta Thomas, Mary Walker Perry, Eunice Evans, Mary Kessler, Mary Broadlove, Ellen Walker, Grace Houser, Ervin Baldwin and Virginia Burt.

"Psyche and Eros," a symbolical presentation of an old Greek myth, will feature the May day celebration. Those taking the leading parts are: Psyche, Miss Virginia Peeler; Eros, Miss Harriett Farrington; Aphrodite, Miss Sarah Slaughter; Mercury, Miss Virginia Sevier. The cost includes about 100 others, who are to take part in the group dances, some of the most beautiful of which will be "Night and the Moths," "Sleep and the Dreams" and the dances of the "Seasons."

If the weather necessitates postponement, the festival will be held the following Monday, May 6, at 4 o'clock. Agnes Scott invites all friends to May day.

Ohio Lady Was Suffering From Womanly Weakness, But After Taking CARDUI She Grew
Strong and Well.

"Chillicothe, Ohio.—'Cardui is my standby as a tonic,' says Mrs. Mary Smith, of 677 Orange St. This city, after relating her experiences in the use of that well-known medicine for women.

Some years ago, Mrs. Smith says, she found herself in such a serious condition from some womanly weakness that she could do no work and scarcely could get up or down.

"I had misery in my head," she says, "and just asked at times till I couldn't rest. I would have dizzy, fainting spells and just stagger. I didn't have an appetite.

"Some one told me I needed a good woman's tonic. I asked and was told CARDUI might help me. I began to use it and, after a short time, I could see I was being gradually made stronger.

"I quit having the weak spells. I ate and seemed to relish what I ate. I could sleep without waking up at night. I grew strong and well and when the . . . came around, I had very little trouble."

Atlanta and Lowry Bank Opens New Quarters May 1

Formal opening of the magnificent new headquarters of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, occupying the entire ground floor of the building originally known as the Equitable building, at the corner of Pryor street and Edgewood avenue, will take place next Thursday, it was announced Friday. All friends of the bank, including 40,000 or more depositors, are invited to call that day and make a full inspection of the premises.

This new banking establishment enjoys the double distinction of being the most handsome and the largest banking quarters in the entire south. It has been completely changed, enlarged and rearranged, the work anticipating the consolidation of the Atlanta National and the Lowry Bank and Trust Company of Georgia. This will be the main office of the consolidated bank, other offices being located in the Atlanta National Bank building and in the Piedmont hotel.

Remodeling of bank quarters has necessitated entire remodeling of the ground floor of the building, which is the oldest skyscraper in Atlanta. The main entrance is now on Edgewood avenue, through the main lobby, reached through one of the entrances to the bank on Pryor street, during banking hours.

The bank itself occupies the entire first floor and basement and about half the second floor. The first floor is given over to the banking, trust, real estate and bond business. In the basement are the numismatist and burglar proof vaults, while the accounting department is located on the second floor.

Work of enlarging and renovating banking quarters has not interfered with business, which has gone on in routine manner throughout the period of reconstruction.

PETITION IS FILED TO BLOCK PAYING STATE-AID MONEY

A bill to enjoin the Georgia State Highway department from paying any funds, as state aid money, in connection with construction of the eight-mile Reunswick-Broadfield highway in Glynn county was filed Friday in DeKalb superior court by Attorney Frank T. Grizzard, representing M. C. Carroll and C. M. Carroll, Atlanta contractors.

The petition alleges that the two Carrolls and T. P. Wright formed a partnership to build the road after the job had been abandoned by the firm of Freeman and Carroll, of Decatur, and that Wright, since completion of the road, refuses to come to an accounting with the other partners.

The bill alleges that the state highway department has the road listed as Project 261, for state aid under the new highway law; and that unless an injunction is granted, any funds paid to the builders would be inequitably shared in by Wright until he agrees to a settlement with the Carrolls. The bill also asks for a receiver for the partnership.

Officials Continue Search for Morgan On Slaying Charge

Rome, Ga., April 25.—Sheriff R. E. Wilson, of Floyd county, today communicated with officers at Calhoun informing them he has information that a man answering the description of West Morgan, sought in connection with the shooting and death of S. C. (Shorty) Goss, county policeman, at Calhoun, Ga., yesterday, had passed through Lindale late last night.

Calhoun officers immediately attempted to locate the man seen by communicating with authorities in cities between there and Atlanta. They have been furnished with a description of the fugitive.

Goss, it is said, was shot through the temple as he entered the door of the Morgan home at Weldon's Bend, seven miles from Calhoun, bent on searching the house for liquor. He died instantly.

$100,000 Apartment House Is Planned For Ponce de Leon

Sale of a lot, 87 1-2x200 feet in size, on Ponce de Leon avenue at the corner of Seminoles avenue, was announced Friday by Dana Belser, manager of the real estate department of the Atlanta Trust company. The purchaser, J. H. Whisenant, plans erection of an apartment house to accommodate 30 families and to cost $100,000, it was stated. The consideration was $15,000.

The lot was formerly the property of Thomas L. Stokes, of Davison-Paxon-Stokes company. Mr. Stokes at one time had his residence there, but it was almost destroyed by fire.

Driving Club Is Scene of Pretty Parties

A number of pretty parties were given Friday at the Piedmont Driving club in compliment to several opera visitors.

Mrs. Ernest Woodruff entertained at luncheon in honor of a group of charming visitors, Mrs. Donald McClain, of Cartersville, Ga., and Mrs. Edward Lee McClain, and Mrs. Miller, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Gracing the center of the table was a bowl of pastel-shaded French flowers, including tulips, snapdragons, sweetpeas and jonquils. Silver candlesticks held yellow unshaded tapers, and placed at intervals were comports of yellow and white mints. Covers were placed for twelve friends.

Mrs. J. Russell Porter entertained at tea in honor of her guest, Mrs. A. C. Read, of Savannah, Ga., and for Mrs. W. T. Stewart, of Guilford, Miss., who is the guest of Mrs. Lee Ashcraft. The daintily appointed tea table, placed in the gray room of the club, was overlaid with an exquisite lace cloth, and adorned with a silver basket of Dresden-shaded spring blossoms. Placed at intervals on the table were silver candlesticks holding pink unshaded points and alternating were comports of daintily embossed mints. Invited to meet Mrs. Read and Mrs. Stewart were fifteen intimate friends of the hostess.

Mrs. H. C. Caldwell entertained at luncheon at 1:30 o'clock in honor of Mrs. Charles Dana, of New York, and Mrs. Steven Watts, of Charlottesville, Va. The elegantly appointed table was adorned with a silver basket of roses and snapdragons in the center. Surrounding these were silver candlesticks holding unshaded pink tapers and baskets of spun candy. Covers were laid for twenty guests.

The House of Service

There is nothing we could wish more sincerely than to be called the House of Service—to Atlanta and to the South.

Merely to be a big store, to do a big business, is a small part of our idea of Service. It is our earnest desire to be more than a business—to be an institution, helpful and constructive, in the upbuilding of our city and community.

We believe there's a real Service in catering to the needs of a people—in giving them all that is good in merchandise, in providing every necessity, every luxury, when luxury is wanted.

We believe it is a real Service to present these things in their most attractive forms, in the most attractive surroundings within our power.

We believe, most of all, that it is a genuine Service to provide always the best quality, the best value, that can be bought at the price.

This is the Service we strive to render. The verdict is with you whom we serve.

Do we do these things?
Isn't it worth while to find out?

WOMAN SO ILL COULDN'T WORK

Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped her Suffering and Restored her Health

Momence, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. I was working in a dining room in town, and sometimes I could not do my work; had pains in the lower part of my body and had to stay in bed. One of my neighbors told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength."—Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHAUD, Momence, Illinois.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question. "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes."

That is 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

ENOUGH CARS ASSURED FOR PEACH SHIPMENTS

Peach growers were assured an ample supply of cars for the movement of their crop, and perfect conditions of transportation during 1924, at a meeting attended by 100 or more representatives of railroads operating in the peach-growing sections of Georgia, held Friday morning in the assembly room of the Southern Freight association.

The railroads anticipate no trouble in maintaining the fast schedules necessary to put Georgia peaches on the markets of the east and central west in perfect condition and there will also be an ample supply of refrigerator cars and ice, it was stated. The Fruit Growers' express, which furnishes the refrigerator cars, gave assurance of plenty of rolling stock and the Atlantic Ice and Coal corporation, furnishing the ice, guaranteed plenty of that necessary commodity.

FEDERAL RESERVE LEADERS ATTEND BANK CONVENTIONS

BOY KILLED IN CRASH TO BE BURIED SUNDAY

The body of Willie G. Lee, 19, of 628 Chestnut street, who was killed Thursday night when the truck on which he was riding with three others crashed into the steel beam at the Bellwood avenue viaduct, will be buried Sunday afternoon in Magnolia cemetery, following funeral services at 2:30 o'clock from the Bellwood Avenue Baptist church. Rev. W. M. Pruitt, assisted by Rev. L. B. Howell, will officiate. Hunter & Blanchard company will be in charge.

Other occupants of the truck were R. S. Stewart, 24, of 79 Echo street, who police say was driving, and Claude Whitfield, 21, of 217 The Alvin street. Both suffered head injuries and bruises about the head and body. They were rendered temporarily unconscious in the crash, it is said.

Stewart was arrested by Officer L. J. Carroll upon a charge of reckless driving and manslaughter. He told the police he did not know until Friday night that any of his companions were fatally injured. He left the scene of the wreck in a dazed condition, he said.

FEELS 15 YEARS YOUNGER SAYS RICHMOND MAN

J. P. Moon Gives Tanlac and Tanlac Vegetable Pills Credit For Breaking Up Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble.

"I will never be able to praise TANLAC enough for what it has done for me," is the grateful statement of J. P. Moon, 1705 East Main St., Richmond, Va.

"Stomach trouble and rheumatism had me and all my friends thinking my time was about up. But, as I am now enjoying almost perfect health I can credit TANLAC and the TANLAC Vegetable Pills with saving my life and prolonging my days.

"My remarkable recovery has also been the cause of lots of other people taking TANLAC and getting well. I know one man who had suffered with rheumatism fourteen years. I got him to take TANLAC and now he can walk as good as anybody and is in splendid health. As for me, I'm a new man and feel all of fifteen years younger since taking TANLAC."

TANLAC is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

The Half-Time Wife

BY VIOLET DARE

XXIV—AN OPEN BREAK.

Late that afternoon when his wife arrived home, Geoffrey Atwood was waiting for her.

"Suzanne—" She had never heard him speak so severely before. "I wish you'd explain to me what you meant by not meeting for luncheon this noon, when you knew how important it was."

Suzanne sauntered over to a big chair near the fire and sat down on the arm of it, slowly drawing off her gloves.

"You wouldn't let me explain when I talked with you," she answered. "I tried to tell you then that I couldn't meet you, but you just didn't listen. I had an important engagement of my own."

"I can't think of any engagement you might have that would be more important than luncheon with me when I asked you to," he retorted. "You have changed so lately; I don't understand what has come over you. Until a short time ago you were charming; nobody could have asked for a more delightful companion than you were. But lately—"

"Lately," she answered her eyes blazing. "And you have not cared whether she did or not. You communicated with me through her. You sent word to me that you will not be in town, and then lunch publicly with her. Oh Geoff, I saw you that day, and it broke my heart. I decided then that I wouldn't care for you any more. Duncan Hale has been ready to step in; he has begged me to leave you and get a divorce, and marry him. I used to be in love with him, before I met you, but we quarreled and he went away. I married you with love for him in my heart—I love you, quite frankly, you may recall."

"I didn't know it was Hale," Atwood replied, grimly.

"You do," she said. "He has been right on hand sending me flowers, doing all that he could to make me happy, and unfortunately, the more he did for me, the more I cared for you. But you just didn't care for me any more. When I tried to talk with you about her, you refused to be reasonable. Well, I don't care any more. I've been warned that she wanted to marry you, and that my being your wife wouldn't interfere with her efforts. Evidently you prefer her society."

"Yes, well, Geoff, I don't care. But don't expect me to alter my life to suit yours."

She opened one of the French windows and looked out into the garden. There was a soft, misty rain, that blew against her cheeks refreshingly. She hurried to the other end of the terrace and through the dining room to the stairs.

As she ran along the upper hall Dick Leigh called to her.

"Suzanne, would you come here a second?" he asked. She went into the upstairs sitting room, and found him lying on a couch near the window. "I feel sort of queer—guess it's influenza"

or something; do you know what to do to choke it off?"

She laid one hand against his cheek, took his wrist in the other, fever, she told him, switching on a light. "I'll—why Dickie, your face looks sort of queer. I'm going to call a doctor."

She did, and he arrived promptly, and gave his verdict in short order.

"Scarlet fever," he announced, and

During the night Suzanne cared for Dick.

glanced down ruefully at his evening clothes, which he had to go home before I can go on to my dinner party," he added.

"Oh, Doc," exclaimed Dick, who had known Dr. Hewitt since he was a small boy. "Don't condemn me to that. Why, I rushed home from college to escape it."

"Well, you brought it along with you; you've got a rash on your chest that's a beauty. And with your throat, and your head—boy, you're lucky to be where you are. Though I'll have to ship you off to a hospital immediately."

"Oh, please let him stay here," begged Suzanne. "I've had scarlet fever, and I know how to take care of it. And we'll get a nurse, and quarantine the house—"

"I met Geoff rushing out of the front door with a traveling bag as I came in," remarked the doctor, pausing in writing a prescription. "I'll bet you knew what this was and tipped him off. Well, Geoff, I don't care. But don't expect me to alter my life to suit yours."

"Of course I did," lied Suzanne. "I wasn't going to have him tied up here."

But during the night as she looked after Dick, she wondered. Why had Geoff rushed away so quickly? Couldn't he hear to be in the same house with her since that last quarrel?

BANK CASHIER ROBBED OF $63,000 IN BILLS

Granite City, Ill., April 25.—Bandits today robbed T. D. Gradinaroff, assistant cashier of the Granite City National bank, of $63,000 in currency which he had just received at the postoffice from the St. Louis Federal Reserve bank. Several shots were fired by Gradinaroff and the bandits but no one was wounded.

The robbery was staged in front of the bank, across the street from the postoffice. The money was intended for steel company payrolls.

Gradinaroff said he did not know how many bandits were in the party. They are believed to have used two motor cars in their escape.

Joe Jackson Appeals.
Milwaukee, Wis., April 25.—Joe Jackson, former outfielder of the Chicago American league baseball club, will appeal from the recent decision of Judge J. J. Gregory in setting aside a verdict of more than $16,000 against the club, for alleged back salary. It was announced today.

Over Harbors Bill.
Washington, April 25.—Rivers and harbor improvements at an estimated cost of nearly $31,000,000 would be authorized under a bill unanimously approved today by the house rivers and harbors committee. The measure provides for 29 new projects, modification without additional expense to the government of seven already authorized, and for three others.

Among the projects listed in the bill are those for construction of an inland waterway between the Mississippi river at New Orleans and Corpus Christi, Texas, at a cost of $10,000,000; a waterway connecting Gravesend and Jamaica bays, New York, $2,000,000; improvement of the Delaware river between Philadelphia and Trenton, N. J., $1,325,000, and improvement at Hilo harbor, Hawaii, $2,100,000.

The bill also proposes expenditure of $375,000 for an inland waterway between Norfolk, Va., and Beaufort Inlet, N. C.; $541,000 on Norfolk harbor; $714,000 to improve the channel to Newport News, Va.; $1,005,000 for improvement of the Chesapeake Bay, and $1,000,000 for work on the Tennessee river between Dam No. 2 and Florence, Ala.

In its report, the committee said it arrived at its conclusions as to what projects should be authorized it had been guided by two factors: The necessity for the development

Bamboschek Once Directed Music at Bulgarian Court

Particular interest attaches to presentation of "Pavane" this afternoon by the Metropolitan Grand Opera company in that Giuseppe Bamboschek, one of the world's foremost conductors, will be seen in action. Bamboschek, who is now in Venice, Italy, the home of Signor Emilio Volpi, widely known Atlanta teacher of voice and grand opera coach, and the two have been firm friends since boyhood.

Bamboschek and Signor Volpi are seen together often during Atlanta's annual grand opera week and each one is an admirer of the other's work. When about 20 years old Bamboschek was conducting in the highest class theaters in Italy, and created such a favorable impression that he was engaged as musical director for the court of the czar, Ferdinand, of Bulgaria. In fact, he now has in his possession a highly valuable and much-prized ring that was presented to him as a token of appreciation.

After the love of grand opera finally lured him from the court back to grand opera, his work instructing the princesses of the Bulgarian court, and the laurels won there, were topped by his success with the Metropolitan opera, in New York city, for, after being there but a short time he worked himself up to the position of first conductor and general musical secretary.

Mr. Bamboschek not only specialized in grand opera, but is a finished pianist, and a composer of note, and after having completed his Metropolitan engagement, will sail for Paris, going then to Berlin, to conduct several symphony orchestras for the Berlin opera. He is also a composer of note, and after having completed his Metropolitan engagement, will sail for Paris, going then to Berlin, to conduct several symphony orchestras for the Berlin opera.

After completing his work in Warsaw, Mr. Bamboschek will go to Vienna and Italy to inspect prospective material for stars for the Metropolitan.

Not only will he direct there, but he will direct concerts in Munich, Berlin, and Vienna. He is also a composer of note, and after having completed his Metropolitan engagement, will sail for Paris, going then to Berlin, to conduct several symphony orchestras for the Berlin opera.

Washington, April 25.—Indorsement by President Coolidge today of the views expressed in the senate Tuesday by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, opposing large government expenditures and bonus legislation, strengthened many persons in Washington in their belief that Mr. Coolidge will veto the soldier bonus bill.

The president, discussing with visitors today his declaration in his Associated Press address against "definite and definite" assaults by organized minorities on the public treasury, reiterated his frequently made plea for economy and in that connection called attention to the senator's address.

The senator criticized additions to the tax burden of the American people, and opposing the bonus bill, declared that the government should start to curtail expenses, even if congress had to refrain from doing certain things which might be pleasant and politically expedient to do.

Mr. Coolidge told his callers that he regarded the views of Senator Borah as outlined in his address as fundamental sound and the result of logical conclusions. He made it plain that his indorsement of Senator Borah's declarations was general and not applicable to the particular discussion of any particular bill, but his remarks were interpreted by many of his callers as meaning that he stood with Senator Borah in opposition to the bonus bill.

The statement of the president's views today was the nearest approach to a definition of his position on the bonus bill, which he made in a day address in New York, in which he declared his opposition to a bonus as a matter of principle, regardless of the effect it might have.

To Get Bill Next Week. Indications developed during the day that the paid-up insurance bill probably will reach the president within a week. The senate committee, consisting of Senators Curtis, McLean, Connecticut, and Walsh, Massachusetts, democrats, was appointed and arrangements were made for an appointment Monday with the house conference.

Regardless whether the president signs the bill or vetoes it only to have it passed over his head, as many members of congress predict will be done in event of a veto, government machinery will be found prepared to undertake administration of the act.

Under the act, the government will require the closest scrutiny of the individual war records of nearly 6,000,000 soldiers, sailors and marines, and every effort will be made to secure the most complete and accurate information possible for the purpose of determining what is the greatest clerical undertaking upon which the government ever has embarked.

Veto Bureau Plans Ready. Director Higgs, of the veterans' bureau, which will be the office of actual issue of the proposed adjusted compensation payments, whether or not the act is passed, is ready to function whenever the act is passed. The bureau is ready to function whenever the act is passed.

The key to the whole administrative problem, however, lies in the personal military records of the veterans. Each of these records, nearly 6,000,000 of them, must be searched and checked before any payment can be made.
